

Theorizing the Body, Embodiment, and Body-Practices

Mount Royal University, in conjunction with the Canadian Society for Women in Philosophy (CSWIP), is pleased to be hosting a 3-day international philosophy conference (Oct 26-28, 2012) on Theorizing the Body, Embodiment, and Body-Practices.

The conference will include sessions, organized panels, and plenary discussions on the following themes:

- feminist philosophy and the study of body-practices (dance; yoga; eating; sexual activities)
- theoretical accounts of the body in society (the healthy body, the maternal body, the gendered, sexed and raced body, the violent or criminal body)
- mind/body relations and embodied cognition
- revisiting canonical theorists of the body

Keynote Lecture

The Knowing Body: Representation, Objectification, Resistance

Dr. Cressida J. Heyes, Canada Research Chair in Philosophy of Gender and Sexuality (University of Alberta)

Leacock Theatre, 6:30-8:00pm, Friday October 26

For registration and programme information, see www.cswip.ca

Sponsored by: Canadian Society for Women in Philosophy; Mount Royal University; University of Calgary; Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council